Petunia Festival termed success

Dixon's 11th Annual Petunia Festival is history, but it will have to go down in the books as one of the best on record.

John Kuster, president of the festival board, reported this morning almost every event, with the possible exception of the parade, played to record crowds.

"Starting with the tractor pull on Wednesday and right through to the drum and bugle corps competition Sunday night," Kuster commented, "the festival was well received."

Kuster saw several factors leading to the increased interest in the festival.

"The weather was excellent throughout the five days," he explained. "Publicity was good. People seemed far more aware of the festival."

Kuster said the tractor pull Wednesday and Thursday evenings drew more than 2,700 fans. The band and choral concerts on the courthouse lawn Thursday had unusually heavy attendance.

Sunday night's drum and bugle corps event filled the stands for the first time in recent years.

The only event where crowds were down seemed to be Sunday's parade. Officials estimated the viewers lined up on Dixon streets as fewer than in recent years.

Financially, thanks to the beer garden, Kuster said the results are good. A complete picture won't be given until the festival board of directors meets on July 17, but he said preliminary figures looked good.

Kuster said the beer garden grossed more than $6,000 and the carnival was expected to return "a record figure of about $8,000."

More than a financial success, most agreed the beer garden was a social and artistic success. The tent was crowded all three evenings, the music was well received and there was no hint of trouble.

McReynolds resigns from board

Winston McReynolds, vice chairman of the Lee County Board and chairman of the Finance Committee, today informed County Board Chairman Irvin Koch he plans to resign, "due to the condition of my health."

McReynolds, represents District 3 and has been a member of the County Board since 1969.

In a letter, McReynolds said, "I find myself unable to fully and effectively discharge my duties in the best interests of the Lee County Board... and regretfully, tender my resignation which I feel is in the best interests of myself and of my constituents."

McReynolds continued, "It has been a pleasure serving with you and the other members of the Lee County Board and for all of my constituents who have given me so much support over the years."

Contacted, Koch would not say who would be appointed to fill the chairmanship and vice chairmanship now held by McReynolds.

4 burn to death in road crash

CHICAGO (AP) — Four persons were burned beyond recognition and a man was critically injured early today in a fiery truck-automobile accident on the northbound Dan Ryan Expressway.

Two explosions followed the collision. Traffic was halted for about 30 minutes while firemen extinguished the blaze and cleaned up the debris.

Harold Conklin, 59, of Rockford, the truck driver, apparently collided with the car carrying four persons. The force of the impact drove the car into a concrete abutment and the explosions followed. For about an hour, the truck hung over 17th Street until equipment was brought to the scene to return it to the roadway.

Authorities weren't able to identify the victims from the automobile, but officials said they included a man, a woman and two children about six and 10 years old.

The man and woman plunged 30 feet to the road below after the car was left dangling on an overpass on the nation's busiest highway.

Officials said that Conklin, who was driving a truck filled with automobile parts, was running along the expressway with his clothing aflame.

A fireman tossed a blanket over him to smother the fire, officials said. He suffered severe burns over 50 per cent of his body and was flown by helicopter to a hospital.

Ford proposes cut in road funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford asked Congress today to drastically reduce the size of the highway trust fund and to dedicate the fund only to the completion and the maintenance of the country's Interstate highway system.

All other highways would be funded from general Treasury revenues if the President's proposal is enacted into law.

In addition, the President proposed giving states new revenue by allowing them to raise state taxes on gasoline by one cent without increasing the over-all state-federal gas tax.

Under this provision, the federal government would agree to reduce the current four-cent-per-gallon federal tax to three cents in states which raised the state tax by one cent.

The Ford proposal is similar to the proposal the administration planned to send to Congress in February. That proposal was held up to allow incoming Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman Jr. time to review the legislation and make comments.

The administration proposal calls for one cent per gallon of the current four-cent tax on gasoline to go into the highway trust fund to be used for finishing the 42,500-mile-long Interstate system.

The Ford proposal would give high priority to completion of Interstate segments between systems but relatively low priority to completing segments within cities.

Two cents of the current four-cent-per-gallon tax would be transferred to general revenues and could be used for building non-Interstate roads. The final cent would be diverted to the states for use on transportation projects or for any other state program.

The administration said it would encourage states to use the one-cent-per-gallon revenues for transportation purposes, including mass transit, but said this would not be mandatory.

All other highway-related tax which now go into the trust fund would continue to flow into that pool. These include excise taxes on automotive parts and user fees from trucks.

Another major feature of the administration proposal would be the consolidation of approximately 30 highway categorical grant programs into four broad programs.

Annual revenue for the highway trust fund currently totals about $6 billion, most of it from the federal gasoline tax.

The administration estimated that, under its proposal, highway trust fund revenue would total about $3.3 billion in 1977. Another $2 billion which would go into the trust fund under current law would go to the general fund under the administration proposal.

The highway legislation is sure to stir controversy in Congress. Supporters of mass transit have tried repeatedly to divert some of the money from the highway trust fund into mass transit projects while others have fought to maintain the current highway funding system.

The highway message kicks off a busy week for the President.

He is expected to make the long-awaited formal announcement of his candidacy for the 1976 presidential race on Tuesday, and on Friday he will begin a three-day campaign-style trip to Illinois and Michigan.

Ford spent the July 4 holiday weekend in the Washington area. He officially launched the new White House swimming pool by going five laps for photographers and reporters. He pronounced the pool "just the right length."

On the business side, Ford met with Indonesian President Suharto. It was another in a series of meetings to give assurances to Asian leaders that the United States plans to keep its commitments in that part of the world despite the withdrawal from Vietnam.

Ford spent Sunday on the golf course and spent a quiet evening with his family.

Israelis launch attacks on guerrilla camps

By The Associated Press
Israel, vowing an uncompromising war against Palestinian guerrillas, blasted Palestinian refugee camps in southern Lebanon from the air, land and sea today. Witnesses said at least 13 persons were killed and scores of refugee huts destroyed.

At the same time, Lebanon's premier expressed hope of getting kidnapped U.S. Army Col. Ernest R. Morgan released soon.

The Israeli raids came less than 72 hours after an Arab terrorist bomb killed 14 persons in Jerusalem in the Holy City's worst terrorist incident in a quarter century.

Addressing parliament in Jerusalem, Prime Minister Yabin said, "We will continue Israel's policy of no negotiations with the terrorist organizations... The only language they understand is the sword — and in that language we will speak to them." He vowed that the war against the guerrillas would be "uncompromising" following the Friday bombing.

The Tel Aviv command made no mention of that bombing, but said the targets of today's raids were guerrilla bases used by Palestinian raiders in various operations against Israel. It said Arab gunners retaliated by firing rockets and other shells at two Israeli settlements just south of the Lebanese border. The Israelis listed no casualties.

Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami did not mention the raids, but said Lebanese authorities are negotiating with Morgan's kidnappers and "we hope to get him released soon."

"We are continuing the contacts and discussions include the terms set by the kidnappers." The terrorists have threatened to kill Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., by 9 p.m. Wednesday — 2 p.m. EDT — unless the United States gives food and building materials to "the toiling masses" in a Moslem slum known as the "slaughterhouse district." The ransom demand was accompanied by photos of Morgan in captivity and three tape recordings in which he said he was being treated well and was impressed by the seriousness of his captors' motives.

In another development, the Israeli cabinet on Sunday postponed for at least a week any decision on further withdrawal in the Sinai Desert in order to seek "elucidations and clarifications" from Washington on various issues in the proposed new agreement with Egypt.

The Israeli command said its "combined forces" struck against "several terrorist bases" in the area of Rashadiyeh and Tyre on the southern Lebanese coast. The communique said all Israeli troops returned safely from the raid. The Palestinian guerrilla command claimed its forces shot down one Israeli jet, but Israel denied any planes were shot down.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said the four-hour attack began at about 2 a.m. when Israeli planes dropped flares and three gunboats opened fire on the big Rashadiyeh and Burj el Shemali refugee camps outside Tyre, 35 miles south of Beirut on the Lebanese coast.

The communique said authorities still were taking stock of damage and casualties. Reports from the camps said the dead included a refugee couple and their two small boys killed in a direct rocket hit on their home.

The Lebanese army said 13 villages in southernmost Lebanon came under intermittent artillery bombardment from midnight to dawn.

The death threat against Col. Morgan was the first word of him since he was kidnapped. The U.S. Embassy in Beirut confirmed it had been informed of the demand but refused to comment further.

Informed sources said the ransom note referred to Morgan as "this American spy" and demanded that the Embassy distribute food and construction material in the Maslakh district of Beirut, an area hard hit in the recently ended street fighting.

The Israeli cabinet had been expected at its meeting Sunday to decide whether to give in to U.S. pressure.

The pictured Dixon Police squad car was one of two damaged when a youthful Dixon driver smashed into them early Sunday morning. Jack D. Mowery, 20, Rt. 1, was reportedly seen speeding, by Lee County Sheriff's deputies, near Amboy. A chase followed at speeds near 100 mph. Dixon Police set up a roadblock on U.S. 52 near South Winds Tavern as the chase neared Dixon. According to police, Mowery failed to stop, crashed into the squad cars and his car came to rest in a ditch. He was charged with speeding, fleeing or eluding police, reckless driving, improper lane usage, failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, disobeying two stop signs, reckless conduct, disobedience to a police officer, and resisting arrest. Mowery is being held in Lee County jail. Ronald Greenfield, 24, Moore's Mobil Home Park, an onlooker, was charged with obstructing police officers following a disturbance during Mowery's arrest. ## Ford and Mansfield clash on gas prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield clashed today over whether the price of gasoline would climb close to $1 a gallon.

Mansfield told reporters he feared gasoline would cost $1 a gallon by the end of the year. But White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the President "sees no indication that it would go that high."

Mansfield, a Montana Democrat, said gasoline would cost $1 a gallon if oil-producing countries put into effect threatened price hikes and if the President's energy policies are carried out.

Recent gasoline price increases, amounting to 3 cents a gallon in many areas, are unjustified, Mansfield said. "I do not believe the profits of the oil companies are so scarce that they needed to impose these July 1 increases."

Meanwhile, two Senators said the recent price hikes would be the subject of a Senate investigation.

Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., announced the investigation Sunday and said it will try to determine if oil companies purposely cut refinery production in order to raise gasoline prices.

They said the first round of hearings will begin within two weeks by the permanent subcommittee on investigations, headed by Jackson, and the Commerce subcommittee on oil and gas production and distribution, headed by Stevenson.

Nessen was asked at a White House briefing whether the price of gasoline might go as high as 85 to 90 cents a gallon and whether Ford would consider that excessive.

"The people complaining when they pulled up to the gas pump this weekend ought to tell their congressmen and senators, who are home this week, that they want to start getting that money back through a tax rebate which the President proposed," Nessen said.

The press secretary said Ford would be making decisions this week on his proposals.

Hurt in fall from float

Body pulled from river

OREGON — Ogle County Sheriff's Police recovered the body of a Rockford man who reportedly jumped into the Rock River from a bridge in downtown Rockford July 4.

Sheriff's police water patrol and members of the Byron Fire Department pulled the body to shore after a Freeport couple spotted it and notified authorities.

The man was identified as Harold Z. Nelson, 79.

Ogle County Coroner Robert Personette took charge of the body.

The body was recovered two miles north of Byron.

Meaning of well-regulated

By JOHN F. McMANUS
BELMONT, Mass.—The first 10 amendments to the U.S. Constitution, known as the Bill of Rights, are a listing of certain rights of individuals which shall not be infringed by the federal government. Among them is the right to keep and bear arms, which is very much under attack today. The Second Amendment says:

A well-regulated Militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

A great deal of attention has been focussed on the meaning of the word "Militia" in this amendment. Does it refer to private citizens who constitute a "Militia"? Or does it refer only to an official body, such as the National Guard or the U.S. Army? Such a distinction is important because, if the founding fathers meant by "Militia" an official body whose members do not possess and provide their own weapons, then the Second Amendment cannot be used to support private gun ownership.

Under close examination, the amendment itself answers the seeming dilemma in favor of the individual citizen's right to own guns. It says that "the right of the people . . . shall not be infringed." Had the intent been to claim the right solely for a duly constituted militia, it would have stated that "the right of the Militia . . . shall not be infringed." In addition, in 1788 George Mason, the primary author of the Bill of Rights, defined the militia as "the whole people except a few public officials." Obviously, the word was meant to refer to individuals.

But the use of the adjective "well-regulated" in the amendment constitutes an even more compelling argument in favor of each citizen's right to keep and bear arms. The purpose of the amendment was to guarantee the "security of a free state" from any foreign enemy, any domestic tyrant, any criminal, and even from a militia that might abuse its powers. The placement of the word "well-regulated" indicated an awareness on the part of the men who wrote the amendment that even a militia—springing from the citizenry itself—could threaten liberty if not checked. Therefore, in order to ensure that the militia too was "well-regulated," the citizen's right to keep and bear arms for his own defense against any and all threats was to be inviolate.

Ultimately, the Constitution of the United States is a contract accepted by each citizen. Government officials when they take office, and individuals upon becoming citizens, swear an oath to protect and defend that contract. And each amendment is just as much a part of the contract as any of its original articles.

Congressman Lawrence P. McDonald (D-Ga.) has pointed out that Congress "has no more right to legislate gun control than it does to legislate speech control or religion control or press control." When any member of Congress seeks to infringe upon the citizen's right to keep and bear arms, he is seeking to break the contract he was sworn to protect. Such a Congressman, therefore, is open to suspicion regarding his attitude toward any other portion of that contract.

If the individual citizen in America is to remain free, he must, among other duties, maintain his capability to well-regulate any militia by possessing firearms. But he must also exercise his right to well-regulate his government by ensuring that only those who intend to honor the entire Constitution represent him in high office. Not to do so is to invite the infringement of all rights and the eventual enslavement of America.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—Congressman John B. Anderson, R-Rockford, in town Sunday to participate in the Petunia Festival Parade, in an exclusive interview, said it is imperative this nation free itself from dependency on the Mid-East for oil and measures must be taken to provide incentives for increasing domestic production of energy.

To do this, Anderson said he will support legislation President Ford will hand down for decontrolling the price of domestic oil.

Presently, Arab oil costs about $11 per barrel while the price of domestic oil is pegged at $5.25 per barrel.

Anderson expects the price of decontrolled domestic oil to rise to $8 or $9 per barrel which he predicted will increase the pump price of gasoline from 10 to 15 cents per gallon.

He favors a windfall tax to assure there will be no profiteering by oil companies and that the public will not be "ripped off," and to keep faith with citizens.

Anderson also believes there should be a tax-credit for persons who purchase gasoline for work-related reasons.

Imported oil accounts for 35 to 40 per cent of our total oil used and Anderson warns the United States cannot afford to be this dependent on the Mid-East nations.

"We must be in a position to say to the Arabs, cut off your oil if you wish, we do not need it. We have solar, nuclear fission and thermal sources of energy on which we can rely."

The U.S. must get in a better bargaining position for sources of energy, Anderson emphasized.

The key is to provide incentive for increasing domestic production of energy and Anderson says free market conditions should dictate what the price of domestically produced energy will be.

There is an abundance of oil at present because of the amount of oil we are importing, Anderson advised and said this is a momentary condition and that the people of the United States should be willing to look beyond today in solving the energy problems.

He asserted Congress has done little to solve the energy problem and "I am disappointed it has devoted so much attention to opposing President Ford's programs."

The congressman, who is the third-ranking Republican in the House, said he just returned from Europe where the joint commission on alternative resources of energy studied the French and British experiences with fast breeding reactors.

He revealed these countries are ahead of the U.S. in the technology of production of nuclear energy.

He found the British and the French are convinced plutonium can be safely recycled.

There is some controversy in this country about nuclear fission plants.

The congressman reminded we handle some toxic substances which are more toxic than plutonium, such as cadmium and tritium.

He said the British and the French philosophy is that this toxic substance can be handled as safely as other toxic substances which are being handled.

Finally the congressman said he thinks Congress has gotten the message from the six Ford vetoes which have been upheld and will soon send him an energy proposal which will be acceptable to the White House.

Anderson speculated members of the Congress will not want to face constituents in 1976 without having passed some kind of energy legislation.

William Lafferty received a life membership in the Illinois Historical Society yesterday after being named the 500,000th visitor to the State Historymobile which was in Dixon for the four days of the Petunia Festival. More than 7,000 people toured the van while it was in Dixon.

A couple from Minnesota wrote to the Men's Garden Club and said that "the beautiful array of pink petunias that line the streets of your city are surely a welcome greeting for all visitors to Dixon."

50 YEARS AGO

In bringing the famous opera Faust before the Dixon people next Sunday, the city intends to give people a chance to hear grand opera who are not able to often visit the city. The lovely music will be heard in the Dixon Theatre for a modest admission price.

Gun ban and prohibition

By GARY D. WARNER

Anyone who has an opinion on gun control legislation—and anyone who does not—should have been in Washington to hear Rep. Steve Symms (R-Idaho) testify before the Subcommittee on Crime of the House Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Symms's testimony closely parallels the thinking of probably a majority of gun owners. It is not a fiery denunciation of gun control but an incisive identification of issues in the national debate.

"Let me begin," he said, "by assuring you that I am all in favor of keeping guns out of the hands of criminals, although I must confess that I am much more concerned about the commission of a crime than I am about the method or weapon employed. Nevertheless, disarming criminals of firearms is a worthy goal. Unfortunately, it is also completely unrealistic."

"Those who attempt to impose strict registration requirements or outright bans on firearms as ways of keeping them away from criminals are fighting a losing battle. Common sense tells us that the reason they are classified criminals in the first place is because they are in the habit of breaking laws. There is no reason to assume that they will obey federal gun laws any more than other laws they have broken."

"The question of federal gun registration goes even beyond the argument, however. As a result of the Haynes decision by the Supreme Court in 1968, criminals would not be legally obliged to register their guns—only honest citizens would. The Court ruled that since persons who possess firearms illegally would be incriminating themselves if they came forward and registered them that they were, in effect, exempted from gun registration.

"The desire to ban firearms as a solution to crime is very analogous to the desire in the 1920s to ban liquor as a solution to temperance. Gun prohibitionists and liquor prohibitionists both reach their conclusions by convoluted logic about human behavior."

"Their assumption is that human beings are victims—mere pawns of the inanimate objects around them. Remove the objects and all will be well. The prohibition period should have taught us that this kind of reasoning is nonsense, that deviant behavior is primarily a function of human free will."

"And just as whiskey was readily available in the 1920s to whoever chose to break the law, so will firearms be easily obtainable through illegal channels by the crime community. The black market opportunities for organized crime would be staggering. Ultimately, any ban on firearms would have the effect of funneling huge amounts of money into the coffers of those who the law was originally intended to control."

Symms pointed out these statistics:

According to FBI reports, firearms are used in less than four per cent of all serious crimes nationwide.

While firearms ownership has gone up steadily over the years, the rate of homicides involving guns has been declining significantly.

Over the last 10 years, less than one-fourth of the aggravated assault cases across the nation were committed with firearms.

There are perhaps 200 million privately owned firearms in the U.S. today, of which only one-sixth of one per cent are used in the Commission of crimes annually, including less than one per cent of all handguns.

Firearms and shooting sports are ranked 15th on the list of sports most likely to cause accidents. There are 20 times more accidental deaths with cars, eight times more deaths through falls and three times more deaths through drowning.

"My final objection to federal firearms control," Symms said, "rests on moral and philosophical grounds. Gun owners, hunters, sportsmen, collectors and shooters are, as a group, probably the most law-abiding people in the entire United States. They are not potential killers and menaces to their communities as the anti-firearms campaign portrays them. Virtually every gun organization and club in the U.S. sponsors, conducts, staffs and supports training and safety courses in firearms."

"To penalize these people who use firearms for lawful purposes because of the criminality of a minute number is not in conscience with the fundamental American principle of justice and fairness. Nor does it set well with our heritage and our history as a free people."

Doctors and malpractice suits

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Almost every day there are reports indicating something seriously wrong in the medical profession.

A spate of malpractice suits has pushed medical insurance rates for this hazard to prohibitively high levels.

Some suits are brought by patients who expect far more of their doctors than we have the right to look for at this stage of medical knowledge. They also disregard the fact that the best of doctors are still human, and make mistakes. Some suits are generated by hungry attorneys.

But when these cases are eliminated, enough substance remains that it is clear the medical profession has not policed itself. The blame can be shared by government agencies, by the medical associations and by the medical schools. For today, considerable numbers of practicing doctors should be stripped of their licenses. Many others should be required to update their knowledge. Scored of hospitals should be better policed or shut down and barred.

I personally know of one doctor who attempted to collect the same bill three times from one insurance company. He was paid twice and caught on the third try. The insurance company did not catch him. A reporter did.

I know of a nationally famous hospital which collected $8,000 from one insurance company, then $6,000 from another for the same $8,000 case. This "error" was caught by the patient. One of the insurers told me they never would have discovered the double dip otherwise.

Prominent, highly respected doctors bill insurance companies regularly for visits they do not make. I know of cases in which the insurers were charged for hospital visits after the patient involved had been discharged and was at home, when she was seeing no doctor at all.

Insurance men in and out of the government tell me that these cases are not unusual.

What brought this medical problem home to me anew was the ultimate in absurdity. I was invited a few days back to a press conference sponsored by the prestigious National Academy of Sciences. The meeting seems to have been organized primarily to whip up public sentiment to get doctors to do their homework and keep up with scientific progress in a major medical area.

The question in my mind during this extended session was why these learned men could not go directly to the doctors. Why does this major scientific institution find it necessary to go to the press and the public to get doctors to do their job?

The answer came out piecemeal, but clearly. The doctors pay them little attention.

Some time back I ran into the same problem in a different field—deafness. When a child is born deaf, it is extremely important to learn this as early as possible. Hopefully by six months, so that he or she can be fitted with a hearing aid and given specialized training early. These steps can make a decisive difference in the child's entire life.

Yet I have found in talking to a variety of parents and to groups concerned with deafness that many pediatricians tend to be ignorant of these facts, all too frequently advising parents to wait until a child is 2 or 2½ years old before taking action, even when the deafness is clearly demonstrated.

The same problem of ignorance runs through the treatment of many ailments. Regardless of the excellence of his medical school, in these days of rapid scientific advance, no doctor 10, 15 or 20 years out can be up on the important advances in his field unless he does a great deal of advanced study. Medical conferences and publications do not solve the problem. Too few doctors make the effort required.

Warning on pet bites

CHICAGO (AP) — The danger of rabies from animal bites is well known, but dog and cat bites can cause another serious infection in humans, three medical researchers warn.

In a study of bite victims with diagnosed infections caused by a bacterium called pasteurella multocida, the researchers said many required hospitalization for three to eight days.

The researchers — Dr. Donald P. Francis of the Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, and Dr. Monroe A. Holmes and Gailin Brandon of the Oregon State Health Division, Portland — published their findings in the July 7 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

They said such infections are rarely reported because they apparently are overlooked.

But public health officials have become increasingly concerned about the threat animals pose to humans because of the pet population explosion in the United States, they said.

They added that studies of healthy pets have found that up to 54 per cent of dogs and 70 per cent of cats harbor the bacteria in their mouths.

Based on a study of 38 of 100 cases of the infection reported between 1962 and 1972 in Oregon, they said cats were responsible for 76 per cent of the infected wounds and dogs accounted for the rest.

While women and men were victims at equal rates, the young and the old had higher attack rates. All the dog wounds were caused by bites, while a third of the cat-inflicted wounds were caused by scratches or a combination of bites and scratches, the researchers said.

The infection can be cleared up with antibiotic treatment.

Proposed medical changes blasted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Health manpower legislation pending in Congress could set a precedent for "civilian conscription," says an American Medical Association official.

Dr. James H. Sammons, AMA executive vice president, Sunday told the entering class at the Ohio State University College of Medicine that the legislation would obligate medical school graduates to serve "where the government pleases" to repay education grants.

"If medical graduates are the target (of obligated service) today, why not engineers and school teachers yesterday, when more were needed, or public defenders tomorrow," Sammons said.

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) —

Farah Debar, empress of Iran, has arrived here under tight security for a two-day tour of the Mayo Clinic.

A spokesman for the clinic said the empress, who arrived here Sunday, planned to seek help in establishing a pediatrics hospital in Iran before leaving Tuesday. She also expressed interest in undergoing a routine physical if her schedule permits.

Empress Farah, the third wife of the Shah of Iran, arrived in her private blue and white 727 jet with an entourage of about 40 persons.

FORDYCE, Ark. (AP) — Keith Richard of the Rolling Stones, one of the world's most popular rock groups, is free on $162 bail on charges of reckless driving and illegal possession of a knife.

The British guitarist was arrested Saturday night as he and three companions were en route from Memphis to Dallas for a concert.

A friend, Fred A. Sessler, was charged with illegal possession of a drug, although the drug was not specified. He was free on $500 bail.

The others — Ron Wood, another Stones guitarist, and James Callaghan, a security guard for the Stones — were not charged.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedian and social activist Dick Gregory faces new charges of demonstrating in front of the White House without a permit.

Gregory was arrested Friday and freed on Saturday. Shortly after his release, he was arrested again by U.S. Park Police.

He was carrying a sign reading: "Mr. President: For a Bicentennial Rebirth, Stop Old Conspiracy Inside America."

Vanilla Ice Cream

A small version of a fine recipe calling for only a few tablespoons of sugar.

2 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup light cream, scalded
3 tablespoons honey
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup heavy cream

In the top of a double boiler whisk together the egg yolks, sugar, salt and light cream. Cook, stirring constantly, over simmering water until mixture coats a metal spoon—about 7 or 8 minutes. Off heat, stir in honey and vanilla; cool, stirring often. Add egg whites and heavy cream; beat until blended. Freeze in a 1-quart refrigerator-freezer ice-cream machine, following manufacturer's directions. Makes about 1 1/4 quarts.

Assertiveness: a two-edged sword

By LEWIS KOCH

It is unlikely that Thomas Jefferson or Samuel Adams, even without the benefit of assertiveness training, would have said "Yes" to King George III even when they wanted to say "No."

Now, as we embark on a national orgy of historical remembrance, there are new Tom Paines and Nathan Hales who are calling for independence from unresponsive phone companies, greedy oil cartels, mean bosses, rude waiters, haughty salespersons and inconsiderate, selfish spouses.

Psychologist Hervert Fensterheim and his wife Jean Baer are among those who have collected and codified techniques for standing up for one's inalienable rights.

Yes, say the authors of "Don't Say Yes When You Want To Say No," assertiveness training is not without certain risks. It can cause disruption, ruin a marriage, lose a job for you, alienate friends and relatives. But standing up for one's rights always entails certain risks.

But assertiveness training can be a two-edged sword. It can revitalize a marriage gone sour, help get you a raise and a promotion, gain new friends and make relatives more responsive.

Assertiveness is not aggressiveness. Being aggressive is a technique for demanding and getting what you want, whether it's rightfully yours or not.

To start becoming assertive, one has to set a number of long-range goals. Next a series of short-range sub-goals which point to the long-range goals have to be devised.

For example, while there's no guarantee that a woman teller at a bank can rise to be vice president, there are a number of specific steps she can take to point her toward her goal. Using assertiveness techniques, each step, each sub-goal has a realistic chance of being mastered.

There are other techniques for becoming more assertive. One is called behavior rehearsal. Over and over again, in your mind, you rehearse, for example, asking the boss for a raise. What will you say, what will he say, how will you respond, how will he respond, and so on, until the dialogue becomes clearly fixed in your mind. Then you get up and do it for real.

Assertiveness training may be especially appropriate for women since they're often put in a one-down position in marriage, work or social affairs.

Assertiveness training classes and groups are springing up all over the country, catering to people who feel they always say "yes" when they want to say "no." The people who seem to be taking assertiveness training seriously are ordinary people, not today's John Hancocks, James Wilsons or James Smiths. But they are clearly stating their terms and signing their personal Declarations of Independence.

Barn remodeled for living quarters

New living space in a previously unused barn loft was the result of this remodeling project planned by designer Gary Roeborg.

Roeborg doesn't let eclecticism stand in the way of a personal statement. Here, he wraps it all together in the loft, a dynamic environment that you live in for six months while still making new discoveries about the room every day. It serves a variety of uses. It's a room for entertaining. It's also a home office, or an office-in-the-barn, if you will.

Principal unifying element (there is one!) is the strip of carpet that runs the length of the 30-foot loft.

Roeborg cut the highly textured body shag carpet into diamonds six feet square and had it sewn to mylar-covered carpet padding. This adds a large-scale geometric element to the loft and also brings with it a suggestion of order.

Body shags lend themselves to special effects like this. The high pile and rough surface texture hide seams. Body shags have the built-in resilience, too, that enables them to stand up to unusually hard use by families with lots of children or families that entertain a lot.

The designer's other touches include the compartmented plexiglass coffee table that holds nuts, popcorn, and beans; the red lacquer chair sculpture in the foreground at right; the red, tangerine, and black graphic that climbs the wall beside the pass-through at left; and the two huge black throw pillows on the fat white sofa. The pillows are covered in animal cutouts, elephants, chickens, and tigers, in bright primary colors.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY—A room we close off during winter months smells musky and this odor penetrates even the mattress and springs. Last summer I put them outside and left them for two weeks. Every day the sun was shining I pulled them out into it. I have tried deodorant sprays and burning incense. I am going to repaint that room and would like to eliminate the odor before painting. Any ideas?—MRS. C. E. W.

DEAR MRS. C. E. W.—This is rather an elusive problem. The odor could come from many things. I suppose you have left all the windows open on sunny breezy days to air it. Vanilla candles are one of the best odor removers I have ever used. Try burning some in the room and, of course, be very careful. Cat litter is quite a deodorizer. Sprinkle it about, leave for a time and remove. Do any of you readers have any suggestions for Mrs. C. E. W.?—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Slip plastic golf club protectors over the rods in your clothes closet, especially over metal rods. They are easier to keep clean.—MRS. R. R. C.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the lack of answers one gets from business places when writing for information. For example, I wrote to a yarn company to ask if a certain brand of their yarn was mothproof so I would know how to store my afghan. They did not answer. This especially peeves me when I enclose a stamped envelope.—RUTH-ANNE.

DEAR POLLY—I am a widow. In the past when I had some painting to do my husband always stirred the paint for me with a clean paddle or the electric paint stirrer. I did not have a paddle and was afraid to use the stirrer so hit on the idea of using a long-handled slotted kitchen spoon in my gallon of four-year-old paint. It worked wonders and was easier to use than a paddle. I could reach the bottom and lift the heavy paint on the bottom and then thoroughly mix it all. Since this paint can be washed out with warm soapy water I washed my brush and roller and stood the roller up to dry. As it dried I brushed it with an old nylon hair brush so it is soft and fluffy again.—MRS. H. M. J.

DEAR POLLY—Start saving those waxed butter and margarine cartons. I find they make excellent containers for freezing home grown vegetables. Place a plastic bag inside carton, fill with vegetables, tie the bag opening, shut and tightly close the carton. The waxed carton helps prevent freezer burn.—HELEN.

DEAR READERS—Sorry we cannot answer your questions by personal letters so please do not send stamped envelopes for this.—POLLY.

"Well," said South, "I certainly know how to play no-trump contracts."

"Hmmmph," replied North.

South's brilliant play at three notrump had consisted of cashing seven top tricks, taking a successful spade finesse, cashing dummy's ace of spades and scoring the nine tricks he needed.

South must have been one of that group of bridge players who feel that the Declaration of Independence gave them the right to bid notrump at every opportunity.

The fact that the South cards called for a two-heart rebid after North's one-spade response had not affected South at all. South did have a sure diamond stopper, a good club suit and 18 fine high-card points. Finally, as he pointed out later on, North might well have had good diamonds instead of his good hearts in which case the hand really belonged in notrump.

Of course, if South had made his proper rebid of two hearts and North held diamonds, he could have bid notrump. As it was North would have raised to four hearts. Six hearts would be a cinch and seven was there in case it was bid.

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures. The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Changing times have little effect on Illinois legislature

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—
The changing times have left hardly a mark on the appearance of the Illinois General Assembly.

Ten years ago the legislature was composed almost entirely of white men in their 40s and 50s, most of them lawyers, insurance agents or real estate salesmen.

The statement remains true today, although there have been a few changes, particularly in the House, where a handful of young and black and female figures can now be seen reclining on the $375 leather chairs that also weren't there in 1965.

The new chairs are one symbol of a legislative transformation that has been going on beneath the surface in the last 10 years; the part-time legislature that came to Springfield in 1965 and spent $3.4 million over a two-year period has been replaced by a virtually full-time body spending more than $12 million every year.

In part, the dramatic increase in legislative spending reflects the explosive growth in state government itself. The total state budget in 1965, for example, was around $2 billion, while the budget requested by Gov. Daniel Walker for the fiscal year which began July 1 is more than $10 billion.

But the increase is also a result of the growing number of days that Illinois lawmakers are spending in session, a trend that has caused some to abandon whatever were their original occupations and become full-time legislators.

Ten years ago, only seven members of the General Assembly listed themselves as full-time lawmakers, possibly because few could afford to live on the $9,000 salary then provided. Since then, however, salaries have gone up to $20,000 and legislators are provided with expense money and an allowance for office costs.

Some legislators argue that the increasing number of full-time legislators has made the General Assembly better informed, less susceptible to pressure from special interests and better able to respond to the needs of constituents.

"When I came down here 10 years ago my office was my desk on the floor of the House," said Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights. "I had three drawers to keep everything in. There were 16 secretaries for the whole House. This was ridiculous. We were completely at the mercy of the lobbyists."

But others disagreed.
"You lose touch with the people when you're in session nearly year-around," said Sen.
James Donnewald, D-Breese.

"The concept of a citizen legislature is very important," said Rep. William Walsh, R-La Grange Park. "I don't like the trend toward full-time sessions and professional legislators.
The contact with the people and the involvement and knowledge and perspective to be gained by being a member of the working public is too important to lose."

One certain result of the trend toward longer and more frequent legislative sessions has been a startling increase in the number of bills considered by the General Assembly.

A total of 2,916 bills were introduced by lawmakers in 1963, a number which also had to take care of 1964, when the General Assembly did not hold a session. By contrast, 4,509 bills have been introduced so far this year, and 1975 is less than half over.

Such an increase might mean that the legislature, in response to the changing times, had moved into new fields and the complex problems of the day.
But the legislators interviewed said this was not so.

"We are just immersed in trivia," said Senate Minority

Leader William C. Harris, R-Pontiac. "We work five times harder than we did 10 years ago and we don't get any more done. We're just caught up with stuff that doesn't amount to a damn—hundreds and hundreds of bills. We still have the capacity to act on the major issues of the day, and we do act on those, just as we did 10 years ago, but in the meantime, we're bogged down with bills that juy have absolutely no impact whatsoever on the people whether they pass or fail."

Legislators of both political parties agreed that the General Assembly is somewhat less partisan today than it was 10 years ago.

"There is a lot more independence in both parties. Party discipline just isn't what it used to be," said Donnewald.

There was agreement, as well, that legislative reapportionment during the last decade had done little to shift the balance of power between rural and urban interest groups.

But several legislators commented on what they believe had been a drastic change in the public's interaction with the legislature over the past 10 years.

"The real significant change has been the increasing number of highly organized minority groups with a special interest in getting the attention of government," said Harris.

"We're getting fragmented, highly vocal groups trying to get government to respond to pressure: Groups of old people, students, welfare mothers, all kinds of people, and they've been highly successful," he said.

Walsh said he thinks the growing influence of citizens' groups often rivaled that of paid lobbyists, "particularly on matters dealing with the environment and consumerism, the relationship between seller and buyer."

Walsh and others said they were pleased with this development, but Harris said he had reservations.

"What worries me is that the vast majority of the people, the leave-us-alone kinds of people who just want to go about their own business, aren't being represented in the legislature because they aren't demanding our attention," he said.

Quiet reform under way in state legislatures

Editor's Note: By comparison with the U.S. Congress, America's 50 state legislatures do their work in obscurity. But while most of the attention has been centered on Washington, real changes have gone forward in the state assemblies. The following article, based on reports from AP capital correspondents across the country, tells about the important trends of a decade and the new look in many legislatures.

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

State legislatures, long considered the ugly ducklings of America's modern political system, are in the midst of a quiet transformation.

An Associated Press study of all 50 legislatures shows much change over the past decade, from better staffing, higher pay, and more frequent sessions to greater hospitality to minorities, less dependence on old-style money lobbyists and significant internal power shifts that have broken up the long rural predominance almost everywhere.

The changes are uneven.

There are great variations. But they include important measures long advocated by reformers within and without the assemblies, and they are taking root in capitols across the country.

In the past 10 years, the legislatures have:

- Seen court-ordered reapportionment end the domination of the rural areas but begin the hegemony of the suburbs rather than the central cities.
- Dramatically expanded their staff and technical assistance, improved facilities, increased legislative pay and generally tripled their own budgets.
- Met more often and longer. Ten years ago, 19 legislatures met annually. Now, 40 do. They handle more bills and delve into complicated fields that barely existed in 1965, such as the environment.
- Doubled the still small proportion of women and tripled the number of blacks in their membership.
- Become more diversified in their occupation makeup. There are fewer farmers and lawyers, more businessmen, teachers, and students (the Idaho legislature even has four college professors, active or retired). Especially in the larger states, more and more members are beginning to consider legislative service as their occupation.

—In this trend to "professionalism" and stronger staffing, and with an influx of younger lawmakers, traditional business and industrial lobbies have lost some of their force and broad-based interest groups have begun to rival them.

The new legislatures were born of the U.S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decision in 1962. Reapportionment began shortly thereafter and continued through the 1972 census. It was expected to end the long period of rural domination in the legislatures, and it has.

The results were dramatic in some states. In Florida, the rural interests — referred to as "porkchoppers" — were abruptly ejected from control and replaced by representatives of the Miami and St. Petersburg-Tampa metropolitan area.

The course of state government shifted just as abruptly, with city-oriented legislation coming to the fore — a condominium "bill of rights," and Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices act and other urban consumer measures.

But in most states, reapportionment has not yielded the anticipated result of urban control. For, as reapportionment began, the cities were losing population to the suburbs and suburb and city were, and are, often at cross-purposes.

Ten years ago, the Pennsylvania legislature had 40 representatives from Philadelphia and 19 from its suburbs. Now it has 34 Philadelphians and 33 from the suburbs. The same pattern has emerged in other states.

In Michigan, Detroit lost seats. In California, power is flowing from Los Angeles and San Francisco to counties like Santa Clara and Orange. In New Jersey, lawmakers can from suburban Essex county and do override the representatives of embattled Newark.

In nearly every state legislature there are fewer farmers.

The decline in rural population has spurred the trend. So has the increase in the length of the sessions.

"Twenty years ago, the session was over in time for spring planting. Now we're lucky to get home in time for fall harvesting," groused one veteran Colorado lawmaker.

The farmers' seats have been taken by a diverse group of suburbanites and urbanites which defies occupation generalization. In many states, here are more businessmen and fewer lawyers. Others have more teachers.

In Minnesota, for example, the number of lawyers dropped from 27 to 20 in the past 10 years. The number of farmers dropped from 38 to 23. The number of teachers rose from 5 to 18, and a new category appeared: The number of fulltime legislators rose from 0 to 15.

Today's lawmaker in many assemblies is apt to be younger by several years than his predecessor. Although he's still commonly a white male in his 40's, it's no longer unusual for legislative leaders to be in their 30's. In Texas, Price Daniel Jr. was 31 when he became speaker of the House.

Younger lawmakers sometimes differ with their elders on matters of policy. Alaska's new young members, for example, were instrumental this year in enacting a law decriminalizing possession of marijuana.

In Connecticut in 1965, only one legislator in 330 was under 30. More than 10 per cent are in that age group today. Some of the legislature's drive in consumer and environmental issues is attributed to them.

"I think the new people were catalysts and gave these issues impetus," says Senate President pro-tem Joseph Pauliso of Hartford. "The old, pre-reapportionment legislature was trapped by the old issues."

Even when they take similar policy stands, the younger members have a new style. "They have affected the manner of conducting business. I feel the younger legislators have adjusted better to new needs like open meetings and greater efficiency," says New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca.

In Georgia, "the younger members are venturing out faster. They used to wait two years, but now you have many freshmen becoming leaders in legislation," says Senate Secretary Hamilton McWhorter.

Blacks and other minorities are gaining strength in the new legislatures, especially in the South. Georgia's assembly has 22 blacks. There were none 10 years ago. Alabama has 15 against none in 1965. In the North, the change has been less pronounced: Pennsylvania has gone from nine blacks to 13,

Ohio from two to 11.

Across the country, black legislators have increased from 94 to 270 in the past decade. They hold 3 per cent of the seats, about one-fourth their percentage to the population. Only in a handful of states, like New Mexico and Massachusetts, have minorities achieved full proportionate representation. There are practically no states where a minority caucus has become capable of enacting legislation over white opposition.

An exception of sorts is Alaska, whose legislature includes 10 natives, nine women and one black. (Up from six natives and one woman 10 years ago). The native caucus is a major force now.

Some minority representatives have worked their way to power as individuals. Speaker of the Colorado House is Ruben Valdez, a self-styled Chicano. California Assemblyman Willie Brown, a black, has been chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

Women have not made as much progress as blacks, though their number also is rising. They have been represented in most legislatures for many years and currently hold eight per cent of the seats in the country. It was four per cent in 1970.

There are no women in major leadership positions in any legislature. That may change if, as executive director Larry Margolis of the Citizens Conference on State Legislatures thinks, the woman coming to the assemblies now "is a young professional woman there for a purpose."

The new legislators are more expensive to maintain, in several ways. In the past 10 years, salaries have tripled on the average. Among the more conspicuous exceptions is Texas, where the annual salary of $4,800 wasn't changed since 1960 until, by constitutional amendment, it was raised to $7,200 this year.

And there are still states like New Hampshire, where a 19th Century constitutional provision limits legislative pay to $100 a year. What New Hampshire saves in pay it lavishes on numbers; its House has 400 members.

But particularly in larger states, salaries are hitting middle class level. In New York, California, and Illinois, they are now more than $20,000 per year. In South Carolina, Maryland, and Arizona, pay increased from an average of about $2,500 to nearly $9,000 per year.

In the largest states, the traditional "citizen-legislator" is being replaced by fulltime lawmakers. Illinois now has 55 legislators who list that as their occupation. Pennsylvania has 88.

In all but the smallest states, the new legislators are demanding better staff and technical assistance. "When I came down here 10 years ago," says Illinois Rep. Eugenia Chapman, "my office was on the floor of the House. I had three drawers to keep everything in. There were 16 secretaries for the whole House. It was ridiculous. We were at the mercy of the lobbyists."

Compton Centennial spectacular outdoor pageant will start Thursday

COMPTON—The Compton Area Centennial Committee has been busy readying plans and arrangements for its forthcoming spectacular.

Rehearsals have been in progress for the past few weeks under the professional direction of David Gibson, a Rogers Company representative. Professional sound and lighting will be used on the 150-foot outdoor staging area. Well over 200 local citizens will participate in this 90-minute production depicting the history of Compton from 1875 to present time.

This show is not a dreary sing-song or a boring history lesson—it will be pure entertainment from start to finish. For those who wonder what life used to be like in days gone by, the pageant should help relive those historic days. Pioneer days feature Indians, settlers, and an authentic stagecoach. How about the Gay Nineties with picnics, old bicycles, sack races and perhaps a bit of whipped-cream pie throwing? Travel to the Roaring Twenties with its open top roadster, flapper girls, and men in gay blazers and straw hats. The crowning glory of any Roaring Twenties scene is, of course, the Charleston.

An awe inspiring religious scene, a Lincoln dialogue and a rib-tickling school room are all part of the show. Throughout the program will be comedy, music, and nostalgic moments beautifully combined to make 90 minutes of fulfilling entertainment. The pageant will be held at the baseball field in Compton Thursday through Sunday. Pre-spectacular entertainment starts at 7:30, with curtain time at 8:45 p.m. Two free dances will immediately follow the show on Friday and Saturday. Friday evening the music will be furnished by "D and the Misfits" and on Saturday the "J. J. Backstreet" group will be there for your dancing pleasure. The Rochelle Moose Lodge will be having a lunch stand on the pageant grounds nightly.

Tickets are $2.50 for general admission, $1.25 for children under 12, $3.50 for reserved, and patron seats for $7. Advance coupons can be purchased from any First Lady candidate for $2.

Vie for Compton title

Pictured here are the eligible ladies who are out campaigning to sell tickets to the gigantic outdoor spectacular "With Pride We Present" next weekend at the Compton baseball field. These contestants are in the "First Lady" contest and one will preside over the four-day Compton area centennial along with a court of four. From left to right they are: Linda Avery, Mabel Davis, Sue Bauer, Bertha Carr, Carol Florschuetz, Muriel Jacobs, Karla Lane, Ann Parkins, June Prentice, Freida Shaddick and Iva Underwood. The coronation of the first lady will take place during the First Lady's Ball on Wednesday at 9 p.m.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE E-607: Ellen J., aged 19, is a thoughtful coed.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "why do some very talented men and women make such a fetish of money?"
"For example, Daddy's chief reading habits deal with the market quotations of Wall Street."
"Yet he has plenty of money, for he has been very successful at investing his funds.

"But he refuses to retire or take mother on a tour of the world or otherwise enjoy himself by spending some of his money."
"He isn't stingy, like Scrooge or Silas Marner, but he gets more pleasure out of winning on the stock market than my brother and I do out of golf or swimming competition."

Marshall Field's View
Here in Chicago the story has often been told regarding Marshall Field when he was said to have inherited $50 million from his father.
A girl reporter rushed up to him and gushingly inquired: "What's it like, Mr. Field, to have $50 million suddenly dropped into your lap?"
Mr. Field is reported to have shocked her by this laconic reply:

"Well, I still wear only one suit of clothes at a time and eat but three meals a day!"
That wise retort should jolt many Americans out of their mad worship of money.
In our luxurious America, despite the standard attack on "Big Business" my clever politicians who say we should always LOWER the taxes on everybody else but "soak the rich and Big Business," it's time to apply a little of the forgotten Golden Rule.
For most of us average Americans now enjoy almost all the privileges of millionaires!
Mr. Field, for example, drinks the same purified water that is also piped into the homes of Chicago's so-called "poor."
He also eats the same hermetically sealed type of bread and canned goods that are on the table of our "poor."
If he wishes the news, he buys the same paper available to other Chicagoans and tunes in upon the same TV channels!

Remember, we have no special churches for the wealthy, nor separate movies, sports events, or even political ballots reserved for the millionaire class!
So open the eyes of your children to this wonderful land in which we live, where it isn't hunger but obesity that is our greatest medical problem!

And where we should be grateful that men of wealth usually furnish the rest of us our jobs and pay checks or, via the banks, lend us the money to build our own houses.
True, some men, like some golfers, get obsessed with the game and forget its basic purpose, but Winston Churchill wisely stated:
"It is a socialist (and communist) idea that making profits is a vice. I consider that the real vice is making losses."
So send for my booklet "How to Save Our Republic," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and help preserve this Earth's best economic paradise!
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Chicago police to study dum-dum bullets

CHICAGO (AP) — Any decision to permit Chicago policemen to resume use of hollow-nosed bullets will be determined by the findings of two studies, not by "emotional outbursts or opinions," says Police Superintendent James Rochford.

Rochford ordered the ban on the bullets, also known as dum-dums, last June 11. A Police Department study has been ordered to ascertain the effectiveness of the .38 caliber ammunition now in use. A similar study by the Law Enforcement Standards Laboratory of the National Bureau of Standards also is under way.

Policemen prefer the dum-dums because of their greater stopping power is greater. A hole drilled in the bullet's nose or an "x" cut across its head causes it to flatten out on impact and cause a larger wound. Critics contend the bullets are too powerful.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am concerned about my husband eating the same lunch every day. He eats a turkey sandwich, which I fix for him, and has been doing that for the past several years. He had a heart attack six years ago and prefers this lunch. He also has a good slice of angel food cake and some preserved fruit. He eats a dish of oatmeal every day.

Although he has not complained, and it has not bothered him, I am wondering if it could hurt him to be eating turkey every single day. I asked him to discuss this with his doctor, but he won't as he thinks it is a silly question. Perhaps it is, but I would like to be reassured.

DEAR READER — Your husband is very wise to eat low-fat, low-cholesterol foods, and turkey is one of the best.

Many people do not realize that a wide variety of foods end up providing essentially the same nutrients. Our digestive system is a giant refinery of items you eat and refine them to the same essential products.

Turkey, red meats and fish all contain animal protein, and the protein in each is made up of the same amino acids. It follows that eating any of these will give you the right amino acids you need.

The importance of eating turkey is that it is low in saturated fat. If you cook it right and choose the right pieces, it is low in fat. The white meat of young turkey, particularly the breast, is the lowest in fat. The skin contains nearly half the fat you find in either chicken or turkey. Roasted breast of chicken or turkey with the skin removed is an excellent source of protein without much fat.

It makes a difference how you prepare the sandwich. I hope you are not using ordinary commercial mayonnaise on the sandwich, or you can be adding a lot of fat that he could do without. You might do better with one of the low-fat, dietetic mayonnaise preparations.

Angel food cake is a fine sweet dessert for people needing to avoid fats and cholesterol. Many cakes contain as much or more fat than a fairly fat steak. You hear a lot about avoiding beef fat, but the truth is that commercial baked goods, including breakfast rolls, are often a major source of saturated fat in the diet. If you watch these, you can be a little more lenient on what you eat in the beef department and still be on a relatively low fat diet. Angel food cake contains no significant amounts of either fat or cholesterol.

Then, remember that lunch is only one meal in the day. What you feed your husband at home is equally important in helping him avoid another heart attack. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Cubs get 12 runs, lose by six

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"The score was 18-12, but it looked more like the War of 1812."

The scene was Chicago's Wrigley Field, and Champ Summers, a young outfielder with the Cubs, was surveying the wreckage after the Pittsburgh Pirates had unleashed a 20-hit barrage in beating the Cubs 18-12 in the opening game of a scheduled Sunday double-header.

The second game was rained out, giving the pitchers a chance to lick their wounds after the 3-hour, 26-minute opening-game slugfest. The 18 runs and 20 hits were season highs for the Pirates, while the Cubs' 18 hits was their most for the year. The Pirates scored in every inning but the ninth.

The Pirates got home runs from Rennie Stennett, Bob Robertson, Willie Stargell and Dave Parker; Stargell and Al Oliver each had four hits and three runs batted in, and Parker also drove in three.

It got to the point where any time a Pittsburgh player made an out, it drew cheers from the crowd of 28,023. When the Pirates went down in order in the ninth, a huge ovation echoed through Wrigley Field.

Expos 4, Cards 3
Montreal was trailing 3-1 going into the eighth but tied the game on Mike Jorgensen's two-run homer, then pushed across the winning run on singles by Barry Foote, Gary Carter and Pete Mackanin.

Phils 8, Mets 6
Greg Luzinski paced Philadelphia with four runs batted in, giving him 72 for the season, tops in the majors. He hit a two-run single in the third inning and a two-run double in the fifth.

"I'm in the best groove of my life," the slugging outfielder said. "I have the short stroke and I'm seeing the ball well." Dick Allen belted his fourth homer of the year for the Phils.

Astros 6, Braves 2
Pitcher J.R. Richard helped Houston snap a nine-game losing streak with his first home run of the season in the fifth inning and a tie-breaking single in a decisive three-run seventh. On the mound, Richard raised his record to 6-3 by stopping Atlanta on four hits over 6 2/3 innings and striking out nine.

Dodgers 5, Giants 1
Left-hander Doug Rau, 8-7, pitched seven innings of no-hit ball and finished with a three-hitter after Chris Speier broke up his no-hit bid with a line-drive single to left leading off the eighth. Bill Buckner's homer and Steve Yeager's two-run single highlighted a four-run first inning which gave Rau all the support he needed.

Reds 13, Padres 2
The Reds pounded seven San Diego pitchers for 16 hits in their rout. Joe Morgan, George Foster and Darrel Chaney drove in two runs each.

American League White Sox 9, Royals 3
Chicago kayoed Marty Pattin with four runs in the second inning, two on Bucky Dent's double, and beat the Royals behind the six-hit pitching of Claude Osteen. Pat Kelly and Carlos May also drove in two runs apiece for Chicago while John Mayberry hit a two-run homer for the losers.

Ashe's lucky day

By JEFF BRADLEY
AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It was Arthur Ashe's lucky day. In the early hours of the morning, he was playing black-jack at London's Playboy club. "I won $300 in one hand and walked out." Then at two o'clock Saturday afternoon, he marched coolly onto the world-famous Wimbledon center court and put on a master's display of serve and volley tennis to defeat defending champion Jimmy Connors 6-1, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, thus becoming the first black man to win the Wimbledon singles title. Fans, bookies and sports writers who had watched Connors annihilate all his opponents in straight sets to reach the final gave Ashe little or no chance against the 22-year-old left-hander, ranked No. 1 in the world. Ashe, casual and relaxed after his mighty victory, saw it differently. "I was the underdog, sure, but I always thought I could win." Born and brought up in Richmond, Va., and educated at UCLA, Ashe, 31 and still single, dismissed the victory as less important than his part in the U.S. Davis Cup team's victory in 1968 over Australia. But he granted that being the first black to win the men's title — Althea Gibson won the women's in 1957 and 1958 — was important. "Having grown up in a segregated environment in the South, I know what it's like to be stepped on, and I know what it's like to see a black hero do well in the face of adversity."

Ruffian is destroyed

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ruffian was humanely destroyed early today, the victim of a shattered right ankle that ended her sensational racing career just one-half mile after the start of The Great Match Race against Foolish Pleasure.

"Don't let her suffer any more," owner Stuart Janney told veterinarians and trainer Frank White after the coal black filly had dislodged a cast and protective brace on her right leg.

The decision to end the life of the winner of her first 10 races came at about 2 a.m., EDT, a spokesman for the New York Racing Association said, and followed by 2½ hours an operation on the shattered sesamoids in her right leg.

The daughter of Reviewer broke down Sunday at Belmont Park with about three quarters of a mile to go while she had a half-length lead in her $350,000 11-4 mile match against the Kentucky Derby winner.

Jacinto Vasquez immediately pulled Ruffian up and dismounted. The leg was put into a plastic cast and Ruffian was removed by a horse ambulance at 7:45 p.m., an hour and 35 minutes after the race.

Ruffian underwent surgery that was to last almost four hours. But the winner of New York's Triple Crown for Fillies could not be saved.

"She was running very well," Vasquez said. "She changed her lead and I could feel something happening. It was her right leg."

While Vasquez pulled Ruffian up, Foolish Pleasure continued to the finish line to win the $225,000 first prize.

"I am so sorry to see such a fine filly get hurt," said Braulio Baeza, who got the mount on Foolish Pleasure when Vasquez, the regular rider for both 3-year-olds, chose to ride the previously unbeaten Ruffian.

"It's a shame. I saw going down the backstretch that he (Vasquez) was working to try and get away, but my colt stayed with them. Then I saw it happen. I could hear it crack."

Dr. Manuel Gilman, the examining veterinarian for the New York Racing Association, described the injury as a compound fracture of both sesamoids in the right-front leg.

What to look for when you're looking for an air conditioner.

Before you choose an air conditioner, ask the dealer for its energy efficiency ratio. This number tells you the efficiency of a unit. An air conditioner with an EER number of 8 or above will be thrifty for you electrically.

The EER number is computed by dividing the BTUs by the watts. A 12,000-BTU unit that uses 1500 watts will rate an 8. If the EER doesn't appear on the tag or metal nameplate, use this simple formula yourself. It's a worthwhile exercise that can pay off in electric dollar savings over the long run.

Don't buy too much capacity. Surprisingly, an air conditioner that's too big usually won't keep you as comfortable as a smaller unit.

So measure the space to be cooled before you go to the dealer. Also note any doors that might let cool air escape, or windows that might let direct sunlight in. The dealer will have charts to translate your notes into the right air conditioner selection.

Some tips on cutting cooling costs. Keep the warm air out and the cool air in with proper insulation and weather stripping where you need it. Block out the sun by drawing drapes. And locate the air conditioner on the shady side of your house, making sure to seal any leaks in the window after you put it in.

It makes a lot of sense to buy an air conditioner that starts efficient and stays efficient. Saving energy always makes sense. And when summer's over, you'll find the extra care was worth it—in dollars and cents.
